APPRENTICESHIPS IN THE NHS

WHAT IS AN APPRENTICESHIP?

An apprenticeship is an initiative which gives you the opportunity to continue your education while gaining professional skills and earning a wage at the same time. Once you have completed your apprenticeship you will receive a recognised qualification in the area you studied.

APPRENTICESHIPS IN THE NHS

There are many apprenticeships available in the NHS. Many people think the NHS is just for training nurses and doctors but in fact there are opportunities across corporate services, administrative roles supporting clinical staff, electrical and mechanical engineering, pharmacy, catering and more - there is something for everyone.

Through the apprenticeship you will get a minimum of a year's valuable experience working alongside professionals. We will support your career every step of the way.

BENEFITS FOR YOU

There are many benefits to being an apprentice within the NHS, such as:

- Receive a recognised qualification while gaining work skills and knowledge
- 'earn while you learn' initiative
- good addition to your CV as it shows willing to learn and gain experience
- improve your confidence in the working environment
- helping your career progression

"If you want the support and guidance to be able to enter the working world, then an NHS apprenticeship is for you. I'm really proud to be part of such a fantastic team." Charlotte Smith, project management apprentice at Northamptonshire Healthcare NHS Foundation Trust

APPRENTICESHIP RECRUITMENT EVENT

START WITH US: COME ALONG TO OUR APPRENTICESHIP RECRUITMENT EVENT

"Apprenticeships provide a stepping-stone into a variety of careers in the NHS. The event on 26th January is a great opportunity to come along and talk to us – and some of our current apprentices – to learn more about the wide range of NHS apprenticeships that are available across Northamptonshire." Jo Stewart, Apprenticeship Project Manager
